THE COWARD.

Read the following notice of it from the editorial columns of The New-York Home Journal.

THE NEW WAR NOVEL!—"The Coward!"—We have been favored with a copy of the advance sheet of this new novel, in press by T. B. Peterson & Brothers, and have no doubt that it will be a success. Likely to be created by it will be a decided one. "The Coward," though having its plot and incidents connected with the great war, and excusing some terrible scenes on the part of the author, is not entirely, or perhaps not even in the interest of such scenes. Consider, for instance, the period of Lee's invasion of Pennsylvania in June, 1863, a considerable portion of the events narrated in it peculiarly appropriate for Sumner's trial, still more so, however, since events occur beyond the Atlantic, and in the Virginia hospitals. With this variety, and the marked interest of the them involved, together with the increasing power and grasp which the author shows by this time, have we not reason to perceive that "The Coward" will be more equal in popularity and effect than the author's previous successful publications in the same line—"Shoulder-Straps," and "The Days of Shoddy."

FOR THE PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN, READ COCHINS' RESULTS OF EMANCIPATION. Proving what are the practical workings of PRESIDENT LINCOLN'S POLICY.

The most important and timely book of the season, which should be CIRCULATED EVERYWHERE.

THE STANDARD WORK ON EMANCIPATION. MANY THOUSANDS have already been sold, and the demand is constantly increasing.

Read it, and you will see from the first statement of the country, testifying to its importance:

From the Hon. A. Stirling, State's Attorney for Baltimore.

"The publication of the book at this time is peculiarly opportune, as written by a forcible and forcible hand, and can be easily understood by any one who has had an opportunity, while at the same time the period of its appearance is just that for which such a book was suited. I trust that it will have a wide circulation everywhere, and especially in the Middle and in what are badly educated. Books of this kind people, and such traitors to obtain political power."

From Hon. James Speed of Kentucky.

"It strikes me as a book calculated to do great good, and I will do my best to have it sent to every one who reads and reads in Kentucky. Since my early manhood I have ever believed that Slavery is the greatest National sin upon which the sun looks in its diurnal course; and yet it is sustained by arguments as plausible and interests so powerful that it is not only difficult, but sometimes impossible to say anything good about it."

As the reader may know, the remedy must be direct and may be slow. The book of Mr. Cochran is especially valuable just now, holding out the cheering hope that, though the remedy may be slow, it must be applied with boldness and energy, and have the sword of justice over the mountains which bound the Continent.

"The author treats the matter as the negro question is so solidly treated here, and, at the same time insisting on the greater and more important side of everything which concerns the social condition of the race."

"It is gratifying to read a book like this, in the midst of the sophisms, and nonsense which have so long wrapped the subject. Its calm, convincing reasons and facts entirely dispose of the bigots by whom the question is shrouded. Emancipation is the right thing to do for a third kind of people, and such traitors to obtain political power."
